Danny Brown: Live at the Majestic chronicles the rise and creative process of one of hip-hop's most dynamic and eccentric figures, Danny Brown. The documentary provides viewers with an intimate look into his life and tour, culminating with the release of his critically acclaimed 2016 album Atrocity Exhibition. Live At The Majestic examines Danny Brown's most formative points, from using the internet as the catalyst to start his career, the Adderall induced recording process of XXX, and his return to Detroit's Majestic Theatre after an 18 month world tour for the first annual Bruiser Thanksgiving. The film was directed by Emmy-Award winning documentary filmmaker Andrew Cohn (Medora, Night School, Kid Danny) and produced by two time Emmy-Award winning producer Rachel Dengiz (The Punk Singer, Park Bench with Steve Buscemi, Medora). The film will be available for download and streaming at Danny Brown's Website starting November 2nd.

Atrocity Exhibition, the thrilling third installment in Danny Brown's discography debuted at #1 in the iTunes US chart and #1 in the iTunes US Hip-Hop chart, trending on Twitter after the surprise release via Twitter Q&A. After calling it Album of the Week, Stereogum said: "The tradition of art-weirdoes who arrive in the pop landscape and leave some permanent, paradigm-shifting mark: That does feel like more of a home for Danny Brown than any specific sub-genre or scene he could have been slotted into over the last several years." He's sold out shows around the world, including opening for Eminem at Wembley Stadium, and collaborated with an eclectic range of artists such as Kendrick Lamar, Purity Ring, A$AP Rocky, Charli XCX, Jonah Hill and more, proving that Brown is able to forge his own artistic lane.

The news comes on the tail of the announcement of Bruiser Thanksgiving 5, Danny Brown's annual festival to bring people and philanthropy together for the holiday season. After four successful sold out shows, with guests ranging from Joey Bada$$ to Lil B, this year features Brown, JPEGMAFIA and Valee lacing up their skates at Detroit's Majestic Theatre on November 21st with a portion of ticket sales going to youth arts organization, Inside Out Detroit.
